HOW TO USE THIS LIST

An external training provider is any individual or group outside your organization that helps with your staff training requirements. A training provider can be a private firm, a professional or safety association, an organized labour group, a government agency, or a post-secondary educational institution that offers health and safety training programs. They provide a range of products, from customized development and training to regularly scheduled courses on various subjects. Training providers may also provide consultation services, giving organizations advice, guidance, or assistance with meeting health and safety requirements.

For easy reference, the B.C. Occupational Health and Safety List of Education Training Providers is divided into seven chapters:

- Chapter 1: How to Choose a Service Provider
Guidelines for choosing a training provider

- Chapter 2: Other Available Resources of OH&S Information
WorkSafeBC and other sources of OH&S Information

- Chapter 3: Education Network
Courses developed by the WCB

- Chapter 4: First Aid Training
The easy way to find who may provide the service you need

- Chapter 5: Diving Training
Acceptable training providers under OH&S reg. Part 24

- Chapter 6: Dive Physicians
List of physicians considered knowledgeable and competent in diving medicine

- Chapter 7: Safety Associations
Safety associations related to industry activity in British Columbia

- Chapter 8: OH&S Related Training Providers
Listing of B.C. educational institutions and agencies that offer OH&S related training

B.C. Occupational Health and Safety Trainer Providers List

WorkSafeBC receives many calls from people requesting information about Companies' who provide training and consultation services on various workplace health and safety topics. In response, WorkSafeBC has prepared this list of B.C. Occupational Health and Safety Education and Training Providers. Firms on this list have advised WorkSafeBC that they provide occupational health and safety training and consultation services.

The purpose of this list is to provide assistance in locating service providers. WorkSafeBC has only approved those courses identified in the Recognized Training, Education Network, First Aid and Diving sections of this document. WorkSafeBC has not evaluated the services provided by other firms or organizations. Their presence on this list does not imply an endorsement or acceptance by WorkSafeBC.

WorkSafeBC makes no warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the information listed, or to the quality of the services provided. WorkSafeBC assumes no liability for any damages or loss suffered as a result of any inaccuracy, or incompleteness therein, or any failure on the part of any listed firm.

Anyone contemplating engaging any person or organization on this list should make their own inquiries and make their own decision with respect to the ability and suitability of anyone on this list to provide the services that the listed party purports to provide.

WorkSafeBC reserves the right to remove any training provider from this list, in its absolute discretion.

CHAPTER 1

HOW TO CHOOSE A SERVICE PROVIDER

There is no magic formula for selecting a service provider for your organization. The B.C. Occupational Health and Safety List of Education & Training Providers provides only a list of possibilities to choose from, and some guidelines by which to make your selection. There is no shortcut to making an informed decision; only by spending time and effort in initial research will you be able to target the right service provider for your firm. This chapter provides some guidelines to assist you with finding a qualified service provider.

Where do you find potential service providers?

Start searching for possible service providers in your area by looking in the chapters of this document, or phone WorkSafeBC, Certification Services at 604-276-3090 or toll free in BC at 1-888-621-7233, Local 3090.

When you attend conferences, look for conference speakers whose approach fits your organization's needs. Networking with colleagues and others in the industry may also help identify more possibilities. Industry safety associations, professional groups, medical associations, departments of labour, workers' compensation boards, Internet Web sites and discussion groups, and even advertisements in safety, training and professional magazines can provide potential referrals.

How do you define your needs?

Before approaching prospective training organizations, you must have a clear idea of what you want. Discuss ideas with colleagues and all interested workers within your organization to define the type of work you expect the service provider to do. Service providers may provide standard course(s) to meet your needs or you may require services customized to your workplace.

Who are the professionals in the field of OH&S?

Ergonomists

Ergonomics is a body of knowledge about human abilities, human limitations and other human characteristics that are relevant to design. Ergonomic design is the application of this body of knowledge to the design of tools, machines, systems, tasks, jobs, and environments for safe, comfortable and effective human use. This statement is from the Board of Certification in Professional Ergonomics (BCPE), www.bcpe.org.

Certified Canadian Professional Ergonomist (CCPE)

Certified Professional Ergonomist (CPE)

Certified Human Factors Professional (CHFP)

Hygienist

An industrial hygienist is a professional dedicated to the anticipation, recognition, evaluation, and control of environmental factors arising in or from the workplace that may result in injury, illness, impairment, or affect the well-being of workers and members of the community. Industrial Hygiene is considered a "science", but it is also an art that involves judgement, creativity and human interaction. This statement is from the American Industry Hygiene Association (AIHA), www.aiha.org.

Certified Industrial Hygienist (CIH)

Registered Occupational Hygienist (ROH)

Occupational Health Nurse

Occupational health nursing is the specialty practice that provides for and delivers health care services to workers and worker populations. The practice is autonomous and focuses on the promotion, protection, and restoration of workers' health within the context of a safe and healthy work environment. This statement is from America Board of Occupational Health Nurses, www.abohn.org.

Safety Professionals

- A. Anticipate, identify and evaluate hazardous conditions and practices.
- B. Develop hazard control designs, methods, procedures and programs.
- C. Implement, administer and advise others on hazard control programs.
- D. Measure, audit and evaluate the effectiveness of hazard control programs. This statement is from the America Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE), www.asse.com.

Canadian Registered Safety Professionals (CRSP)

Certified Safety Professional (CSP)

Certified Health & Safety Consultant (CHSC)

Professional Engineer

A professional engineer (P.Eng.) in the province of B.C. means a person who is registered or licensed as a professional engineer under the Engineers and Geoscientists Act of B.C. This statement is from the Association of Professional Engineers and Geoscientists of British Columbia (APEGBC), www.apeg.bc.ca

Is your service provider registered with the WorkSafeBC Assessment Department?

It is important to hire a service provider that is register with WorkSafeBC, if not then you will be treated as their employer.

Assessment Department Automated phone service and assistance 604-244-6181 or 1-888-923-2768

Is your service provider registered with the Private Career Training Institutions Agency? www.pctia.bc.ca

How do you evaluate a service provider's qualifications?

Once you have selected several possible providers who offer the services you need, decide who can best help you by assessing their qualifications.

Professional credentials

- How experienced is the trainer in your industry?
- What are the trainer's qualifications?
- Can an independent group attest to this trainer's qualifications?
- What special conferences or symposia has the trainer attended in your field of interest? When were they held?
- What professional associations does the trainer belong to? What grade of membership does the trainer hold and how long has the trainer held that grade for each association?

Occupational health & safety experience

- How many years has the provider been active in occupational health and safety training and consultation?
- How many years has the provider been active in your area of interest?
- Does the provider's experience relate specifically to the work you want done or to a closely related area?
- Can the provider give references, e.g. the last five clients in your area of interest? This will ensure that not just those clients who will give favorable references will be identified. Keep in mind that this information may not always be available, as some clients prefer to remain anonymous.

Once you know the trainer who will work on your project, consider the following:

General training, knowledge & experience

- Has the trainer had special training in adult education?
- Can the trainer customize a standard course for your firm?
- Can the trainer meet the training needs of your workforce e.g. young workers, English as a Second Language (ESL), learning challenged, etc?
- Can the trainer deliver a standard course in another language?
- Has the trainer a thorough knowledge of WCB regulations, policies, and standards relative to the training requirements?
- Has the trainer appropriate knowledge of WCB enforcement options and processes?

How do you manage the cost of service?

Some questions you may ask before making your decision may be:

- What is the service provider's fee structure?
- How are clients charged? By the hour? By the day? By the total job?
- Where are the services provided? Can they be provided at your work location(s)?
- How does the service provider treat expenses such as travel, lodging, shipping, and report writing?
- Are cost estimates binding?
- What insurance and bonding does the provider have?

How do you define customized training or consultative work to be done?

If you decide your organization requires customized services for its particular needs, you must clarify precisely what you want done. Have one or more service providers prepare a project proposal. The following checklist will help you target the best service provider for your needs:

- Can service be provided at your convenience?
- What will the service provider do? Will the service provider study the problem? Will a detailed plan of action be provided? What methods will be employed? How will the results be evaluated? Will current information and methods be provided?
- Can the service provider design or customize training options such as self-paced workbooks or computer based training, if appropriate?
- What is the expected end result? How will the results be documented and evaluated?
- What is the expected duration of training or services? What is the completion date?
- Do you have the right to review the appointment of a replacement trainer or service provider?

Ask the service providers for examples of similar work and interview the individuals who will work on your project. Consider the nature and chemistry of the working relationship between your organization and the service providers. Check qualifications and references. Negotiate carefully, communicate information in clearly written documents, and demand written responses. Choose the provider that best understands your needs and best meets your expectations, time frame, budget, and other requirements.

How do you determine the training required and the appropriate method of delivery?

Training plays an essential role in protecting workers on the job. The Workers Compensation Act requires employers to provide workers with the information instruction, training and supervision necessary to ensure the health and safety of those workers in carrying out their work and to ensure the health and safety of other workers at the workplace.

There are general training requirements in various sections of the Occupational Health and Safety Regulations and Guidelines. Specific training requirements are listed for certain occupations.

The competencies a worker requires is dependent on the circumstances of the work. Employers are expected to perform a job task analysis to determine the risks faced by the worker. This job task analysis must consider:

- All of the tasks a worker is expected to perform to do the job
- The environment and circumstances in which the work is to be performed
- All of the equipment the worker is expected to use
- All of the health and safety risk associated with the work

In all cases, training must be conducted in a safe manner and in compliance with the Regulation. Sufficient supervision must be provided in the workplace to ensure training and instruction has been practicable and work is being done effectively and safely.

Training for high-risk situations should include theory and must include a practical component. The length of the course or training session should be adequate to cover all the elements identified in the job task analysis. Assessment may include a written test that assesses knowledge of the subject matter, but must include evaluation of practical competencies.

Attendance and achievement must be documented and if a 3rd party provider is selected to deliver the training it is reasonable for the employer to receive documentation indicating the competencies and standard on which the worker was assessed.

It is important to note that it remains the employer's responsibility in all situations to instruct workers regarding specific risks at the workplace and to ensure the training the worker received is adequate.

Some of the information used in this document came from "List of Occupational Health and Safety Consultants Serving Atlantic Canada," published by Atlantic Provinces Occupational Health and Safety Agencies and "Training Providers - How to Pick a Winner" by Brooke Broadbent, which appeared in the March 1997 issue of OHS Canada.

CHAPTER 3

WorkSafe™ EDUCATION NETWORK

WorkSafe™ Education course materials are prepared by the WCB and taught by local instructors. There are presently six WorkSafe™ education courses available. Within each course are four to seven core topics, with optional electives and workshops for more in-depth information:

- Preventing and Investigating MSI – explains the seven-step Musculoskeletal Injury Prevention process, identifies risk factors associated with MSI, determines ways to control identified risks, and applies tools to prevent MSI and conduct investigations into MSI.
- Hazard Recognition and Control – includes responsibility for workplace inspections; identification, control and evaluation of hazards; and use of the Occupational Health and Safety Regulation.
- Responsibilities of Joint Health and Safety Committees - includes effective health and safety programs, safety committee functions and responsibilities, workplace inspections, accident investigations, and use of the Occupational Health and Safety Regulation.
- Preventing Workplace Violence – includes explanations of WCB’s requirements for protection of workers from workplace violence; as well as risk assessment, violence prevention, and development of a workplace violence prevention program.
- Supervisor Safety Management – includes supervision of a safe work environment, safety inspections, accident investigations, and “due diligence.”
- Occupational Health and Safety in Small Business – explains employers’ and workers’ health and safety responsibilities and describes how to practice due diligence in carrying them out in the workplace.

Courses generally require seven to 10 hours of class time, and may be scheduled over one or two days, or spread over half-days or evenings. A certificate is issued on the successful completion of each WorkSafe™ education course.

For more information, or to register for a course, contact a participating campus in your area.
